Electoral system The 22 municipalities which held local elections in 2018, were elected based on the mixed-member proportional representation system (in case of a tie only first-past-the-post votes were counted). The 5 regions were elected by proportional representation with closed party lists. Party list The Council of the EU (CCE) determined that there were more than 300 candidates in regional and municipal elections in Georgia. A number of these candidates were popular, who held only one nomination in respective region or municipality. The party list is closed, for each party there is a certain number of seats in the municipal or regional council. Parties Voting for party list Before elections, there were 53 parties represented in the parliament. In the regional elections, 7 parties presented blank lists. Candidates In 2018, 184,377 people registered to be candidates. Results In the lists below, the parties are arranged in the order of representation, namely, the number of votes received.
